Tuk-tuk, jet-ski, taxi scams: Ambassadors name the bane of Phuket

Tuesday, Jan 8, 2013 9:08:11 PM

PHUKET. In their first official visit to Phuket, the British, Canadian and Dutch Ambassadors to Thailand today plainly described their chief concerns about the scams and cheats continuing to plague Phuket's tourism industry.

Speaking with Phuket Governor Maitri Intthussat at Provincial Hall this afternoon, ambassadors Mark Kent of the UK, Philip Calvert of Canada and Joan Boer of the Netherlands focused on why tuk-tuk and taxi drivers are continuing to charge tourists in Phuket higher fares than are charged elsewhere in the country.

They also asked why metered taxis are not as common in Phuket as they are in other major tourist destinations across Thailand, including Bangkok and Chiang Mai.

"They are very concerned about why taxis are so expensive compared with other tourist areas in Thailand," Governor Maitri said.

The governor explained to the ambassadors the
